Required Texts:

Kant, Immanuel, Critique of Pure Reason, edited and translated by P. Guyer & A. Wood, New York: Cambridge University Press, 1998.

Hegel, G.W.F., Phenomenology of Spirit, transl. A.V. Miller, New York: Oxford University Press, 1977.

III. Requirements:

1. Four Papers (4-5 pages) (20% each)

The papers are primarily expository in nature. They should identify the main claim(s) of the reading assignment and lay out clearly the structure and main premises of the argument(s) Kant or Hegel develops for his claim(s). Late papers will not be accepted (unless permission is granted at least 24 hours in advance of the deadline.) The lowest grade will be dropped.

2. Six Homework Assignments (25%)

Instead of a final exam, there are six homework assignments. The due dates are indicated by an * on the syllabus. The homework will focus on the reading that has been assigned for that day. The lowest grade will be dropped.

3. Class Participation (15%)

Class Participation: You can send me (via e-mail) detailed reactions to and/or thoughtful questions about the reading (ca. 300 words) prior to the class for which the reading was assigned.

°indicates that a video recording on Canvas will replace in-class lecture/discussion.

IV. Miscellaneous:

The academic honor code will be strictly enforced in this class. Anyone caught cheating will receive an F for the course and will be subject to further disciplinary action. No artificial intelligence may be used on either the homework or the papers. If I suspect that one was used, I reserve the right to hold an oral exam with the student, and the grade of the oral exam will replace the paper grade.

Accommodations. If you need accommodation for disability, work through the Office for Students with Disabilities to get an AFA letter. Accommodations for illness will be considered on a case by case basis when it affects participation for more than one week of the course.

The policies stated above are subject to change, at the instructor's discretion.
